Washington Capital. One day, we were sitting in our room at he Glades Hotel, in Oakland, Md., with a harming lady who had dropped in on a One of our windows looked into that of another room so placed by the projection of the main building that half of its nterior could be seen. We were looking at and admiring a little chubby, blue-eyed two-year old, white as snow, who was pulling a bouquet to pieces and tossing out the agments, or clapping her little hands with light as a train went thundering by. "These rooms, said our fair visitor, have some very tender associations for

"Why so?" we asked. "Well," she answered, "during 'the war the greater part of the hotel was seized by the Government as a hospital, and we were crowded into a few rooms. My sister and I had this. In that room where that little beauty is were two Union officers. one sick of the fever and the other of a wound. It was hard to tell whether they were slowly dying or slowly getting well. I never saw such ghastly skeletons to be alive. We were 'secosh,' and not modest about it either, but still our hearts ached for the poor young men, so ill, perhaps dying, far from friends and relatives. "It bothers one to know how this should be a hospital," we said, "it is so far ved from active operations." "It was thought," she answered, "that the mountain air of the glades would be more favorable to recovery than elsewhere, so this was made a hospital. One day one so this was made a hospital. One day one of these officers dragged bimself to the window, and under the impulse of the mo-thing for them, and he answered, gasping for breath, that a little chicken soup would save their lives. Chickens were rare in those days - an army is hard on poultry. The men will work all night, after marching during the day, to secure a few chickis, so that while the hospital nurses and physicians had an utilimited supply of actual luxuries in the way of wines, potted meats and canned vegetables, they were without cuything fresh. We knew where a few chickens were hid in a cellar, a neighbor, and we coaxed one out of the owner, and after a deal of vexations trouble-for at every turn we were met by | Full Dress Suits, a fixed bayonet and an insult-we got the soup ready, and as the guard in the hall would not permit us to approach our patients, my sister attempted to hand the owl to the officer in the window. Just as he was feebly reaching for it, and she stretching herself half out to give it to him harsh, ugly voice below cried aloud, Look out there - polson.' She nearly opped herself, soup and all. Drawing ack, she hesitated a second, and then she took the spoon and began eating the broth. 'Oh! bother, 'cried the officer, 'don't waste it that way-I'm not afraid," and so she gave him the soup. It seemed to revive them, and they continued steadily to improve, as day after day we supplied them with chicken broth until the cellar was we sat at the windows talking, and we sang to themsang 'My Maryland' and all the Southern songs we knew, until they were well enough to leave the hospital and return to duty. They both seemed sorry to go, and forced on us a quantity of hospital stores and some coffee, which last we needed sad-ooch as tokens of their kind feelings "And did they never return" we asked. "One did not, for, poor fellow, he was ified in the very next battle in which he was engaged. His companion wrote to us about it, and the writer insisted upon opening a correspondence with my sister; and soon his letters grew into love letters, and after a time they were engaged. Nearly a year subsequent to this our patient got leave of absence, and came on to be narried. He put up at a botel, and, will you believe it, our own brother, who was n the Confederate service and knew nothing of my sister's affair, led a band of guerrillas at night into town and captured his ntended brother-in-law from his bed. This not only deferred the marriage, but deprived the young West Pointer of his promotion, that had been promised for gallant services in the field. It was really aggravating, for exchanges had almost ceased, and it looked as if the lovers would have to wait until 'this cruel war was over' before they could be united."

"You should have appealed to Abraham Lincoln to give a married brigadier for an unmarried lieutenant." "We did better. Procuring passes, we went through the lines and appealed to Jeff. Davis. Jeff. said he would put my changed; microscopic changed; microscopi brother's prisoner in his sister's keeping. They have been happily married these many years. He is a brevet brigadier-general now, and it all came of our nursing the enemy in that room." Here is the foundation of a drama supethe letter itself, if not stronger; and, if rior to that given by Bocicault in "Belle Real Estate Transfers.
